Hollywood Author Ci Ci Foster, Delivers the Skinny About Relationships and Sex in Debut Novel, Sunny Rain

Los Angeles, CA-In her literary debut, author Ci Ci Foster shatters myths and exposes lies and betrayal that characterize today's relationships in her new novel, Sunny Rain. The highly dramatic fictitious work takes a realistic account of the issues women face in today's relationships, including infidelity, abuse, STD's and more. Beyond a normal urban fiction tale, Sunny Rain debunks popular myths about black men in relationships and encourages self-empowerment and healing for black women.

Sunny Rain follows the lives of Natalie, Leslie and Monica, three young African American professional Chicagoans who seem to have what every woman dreams of. In spite of appearances, the women hide their demons from the world until they make the choice to rise above their troubled pasts and reclaim their inner power.

The highly praised page-turner has been gaining attention from literary fans, critics and radio personalities. According to Tammi Mac, a popular radio host for KJLH radio, "Natalie, Monica and Leslie seem to have it all together, until they realize that the future always mirrors the past. Foster's visualization of the characters and places, make you feel like you are in that space and time at that exact moment. Each moment has you on the edge of your seat, waiting and wanting desperately to get to the next chapter."

With Sunny Rain, Foster wants readers to move beyond their problems and tap into their inner power. "I hope readers will gain the understanding that we all have our own set of problems that we deal with on a daily basis. No matter what the issues are in our lives, action is the most important step to making it through. And, when you find that inner strength, you will become a stronger person all around," Foster stated.

A highly suspenseful, dramatic and empowering book, Sunny Rain captures the true essence of African American women's struggles and triumphs in relationships and more. ## Sunny Rain Excerpt

“It’s nice to finally meet the woman fuckin my husband.” A sly grin formed across Kenneth’s wife’s lips.

My first instincts were to slam the door in her face, but with Bryce home, I didn’t want to chance her banging on the door waking him.

She stood about five feet seven with a medium build. Pretty. Her cream jogging suit fit snugly on her hips.

“I . . . I don’t want any trouble.”

She laughed in an evil tone, revealing slightly crooked teeth. “No, no, Natalie. See you have it all wrong. I not here to start trouble, I’m here to end it.”

My blood ran cold. I was sweating like a pimp with one ho. Her whole demeanor said she was quite capable of bodily harm.

“How did you find me?” I asked.

“Well, sweetie, in this day and age it’s quite simple to find anyone. And I must say they’re getting younger and younger each time.”

I stared at her, surprised by her comment.

She tucked a strand of auburn hair behind her ear. “You certainly didn’t think you were Kenneth’s first little secret?”

I remained silent.

“You silly girl, Kenneth gets a taste for something different every year.”

“And you stay with him,” I said, “Who’s silly now?”

“I love him for the dog he is. That’s more than you can ever do for him.”
